Another Happy Day.

ANOTHER BRISK and happy day in the stock market. Money was cheap—if you had collateral—stocks were dear, and going up. Wheat jumped six cents when Spain sent in an order for 2,000,000 bushels. Many stocks lost their high records for the year, including railroads. Seaboard Air Line, which is run by a railroad man, not by stock jugglers, made a new high record for all time.

The broker, homeward plodding his weary way, defied anybody to say this isn't a pretty good country. He even stopped to buy something for "the little lady."

A. B. STOREY, president of the Santa Fe, another railroad with a real railroad man running it, dropped into the Wall Street section for a few hours, and comforted inquiries about the Southwest, as the lowliest gentlemen in the Bible wished to be comforted with apple.

The drought in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas is definitely broken. Kansas will ship about 125,000,000 bushels of wheat, and the pessimist is a donkey.

ARE YOU ONE of many convinced that we should keep out "the foreign element," reserving our land and opportunities for the native born?

Consider Frederick Brown of New York. He came here from Czechoslovakia with his father, not long ago, bringing no wealth, except brains and character. He has just given one million to charity, promising fifty thousand a year more, as long as he lives.

The old Talmudic writer said: "What you give in health is gold; in sickness, silver; after death, lead." Mr. Brown is healthy. May he remain so.

HOW MANY of the native born can you mention, off hand, that have made and given away a million in a few years, adding a promise of $50,000 a year more?

Violet Astor, very much "native born," has sold his big New York house on Fifth avenue at a price that would make a good single taxer shed tears of fury.

Benjamin Winter, buyer of the house, will tear down the Astor residence and build in its place a huge apartment hotel that will keep hundreds of mechanics busy and provide homes for hundreds of Americans.

Isn't the man that builds as useful to this nation as the man that inherits? Don't we need a building class more than an inheriting class?

If so, don't keep out the good men from Europe. Such men came here and built THIS NATION. There are more in Europe like them.

JAPAN'S Prince Regent, Hirohito, tells the Empire, officially, that he expects an heir. The Princess cancels all engagements. She will devote her time, before and after, to that new little "son, or daughter—of-heaven, and will think herself well rewarded for all her care, when the baby smiles at her.

NO ONE will persuade her that "in justice to your own health and looks, my dear, you must not THINK of nursing the baby." And she won't be smoking cigarettes in bed three days after it is born. Both things happen quite often, among the prosperous, in our "superior white civilization."

IN JAPAN if you raise your hand to a little child, frowning and threatening, the child will laugh, knowing that you pretend. No one there ever strikes a child. That's one reason why the Japanese fight so well, when they do fight. The Japanese spirit is not broken in childhood.

office forces, and by becoming counsel for the remaining creditors, would either force the firms into bankruptcy or petition them in.

By means of the small claims which they held and by giving the larger creditors promissory notes, the cash of the firm would be obtained.

Many variations of this black scheme have been employed by the black shoe practitioners as a means of circumventing suspicion and possible detection.

The lawyers were blocked in their activities for a time by a ruling by a Federal Court judge that no more assigned claims would be accepted in petitioning firms or persons into bankruptcy.

Eventually, however, the lawyers found a way around this ruling and the game of bleeding small business men went merrily on.

The understanding is that the Bar Association, known throughout the nation as a defender of ethics and a harsh condemnor of unethical practices, possesses sufficient evidence to warrant disbarment proceedings and evidence enough in individual cases to bring criminal action against the brothers concerned.

Hubbard's alleged "crisis" was the leaving of a typewriter because he had money.

"The father has been out of work for some time," said a police officer, "and the typewriter was purchased prior to a period of idleness."

The complaint against Hubbard

STUNNED BY ARREST.
For fifteen years he was employed by the Boston & Maine Railroad, but his last employment was by the Commercial Traffic Bureau, freight claim adjuster of Dorchester.

The six children in the family are Carlton, seventeen and the eldest; Francis, thirteen; Marion, Thomas, Agnes and Joseph, six. Agnes and Joseph are ill with the measles and are confined to the house.

Mrs. Hubbard, it was said, did not get up at 6 o'clock when Sergeant Shea and Patrolman Canney called at the Hubbard home today.

Hubbard was asleep in bed, but when the sergeant asked to see him, Mrs. Hubbard woke her husband and he came to the door, still in his night clothes.

He appeared stunned when told the police held a warrant for his arrest and asked permission to dress and wash, which was granted. On the way to the bathroom he took from his hiding place the revolver with which he killed himself.

DUELL FACING PERJURY CHARGE IN GISH CASE
New York, May 7 (A.P.)—Evidence on which the government is seeking a perjury indictment against Charles H. Duell, head of a motion picture company, as a result of his testimony in a recent suit against Lillian Gish, screen star, today was presented to a Federal Grand Jury.

Witnesses subpoenaed included Miss Gish, Walter Camp, George W. Newman, former attorney for the actress. Judge Maguire, who dismissed the case against Mrs. Gish, accused Duell of perjury at that time.

RUM BLOCKADE BOTTLES UP L. T. SOUND

New London, May 7.—An absolute blockade of Long Island Sound by sequestered rum was established from this port today by a squadron of the so-called "gray navy" that went down the harbor and took up positions east and west of Montauk Point to watch for rum-runners.

A shift in the location of Block Island's rum row is expected to result from the blockade.

Headed by Commander William Munster, U. S. N., in the cutter Red Wing as his flagship, the blockade fleet consists of the destroyers Cassin and Janss, the steam cutters Down, Seal and Red Wing and twelve 15-foot patrol boats.

Laden with supplies from the navy base here, the fleet slipped anchor and moved north down the harbor just as business life in the city was beginning to stir.

It is believed the vessels will be placed in two parallel lines, several miles apart with the patrol boats moving back and forth between them.

Supplies probably will be taken down by one of the larger boats as they are needed, so the fleet will be able to keep on twenty-four-hour duty indefinitely.

Rum Row Warfare Directed by Radio

New York, May 7 (A.P.)—On sea, on land, and in the air prohibition enforcement agents today continued their war of extermination against rum row and its activities ashore.

Eleven cutters and four cutters sailed from the coast guard base at Clifton, Staten Island, today to join the rum blockade. Departure of these craft left but one cutter under command at the mother ship across at the station.

Twenty-four cutters and nine cutters have sailed from Clifton, since Tuesday.

More than sixty boats under direction of the coast guard cutter Majava, are now patrolling rum row. The fleet is directed by wireless from Washington and is aided by a detail of thirteen airplanes.

Nerve boats are being held in readiness to steam out to sea at a moment's notice in cases of emergency and to relieve vessels now on duty.

DON'T HOPE FOR SUCH A HAND.
Playing five hours a day, dealing ten hands to the hour, in the ordinary course of events, you would have to play bridge a great deal longer than 300,000 years to get 13 tricks.

You have heard of the man who did not hold just that hand, and failed to take a trick. He trumped his partner's ace, because he had it, and the partner shot him dead.

THE PRESIDENT hopes, and is determined, to cut $200,000,000 more off the nation's tax bill. That comforts the "better element," which means the richer element, and also the struggling middle class man, with only two or three millions, or even less, the man who expects to be well off in the real American sense of the word some day.

AT PRESENT, our very best element feels toward the tax gatherer as the faithful Don Quixote has felt toward the farmer, gathering his eggs as fast as he lays them, and giving him a red knob when he wants to eat.

suicide theory as the victim would have been forced to walk some distance without clothing in order to reach the river. They cannot conceive of a woman getting in shoes, stockings and a hat traversing such a distance for the purpose of throwing herself into the river.

On the other hand, the theory of the play seems unconvincing, as the police fail to see why a victim should have been strangled at that point, and her clothing left to be discovered, while the body was disposed of elsewhere.

At the same time the fact that all identifying marks had been removed from the clothing, adds to the mystery and strengthens the belief of persons who are convinced that a murder had been committed.

A doctor was in court to watch the girl during the trial and prevent, if possible, a second collapse on her part.

As a result of yesterday's demonstration when Olympia faltered in the tribunal, the girl's mother, sister, aunt and other relatives who have been allowed to sit in the gallery during recess periods since the trial opened three weeks ago were today ordered to sit outside the bar enclosure.

Bagnano's young widow, his mother and other relatives occupy seats on the opposite side of the room.

QUARREL ON BRIDGE.
It was reported that Olympia's collapse, while due, in a general way, to stress of the trial, was partly traceable to a dispute she had with her father over a check for $60 she received in the mail earlier in the day.

Olympia is said to have feared contributing the sum to her defense fund, but her father, it is said, never uttered a word to her.

Support of Baby Lucy, the defendant's seven-year-old "love child," Mrs. Theresa Flinn, first witness called today, testified she worked with Olympia in a shirt factory and

New Haven, Ct., May 7.—Stars and shadows. "Two men looked through the same prison bars, one saw the shadows and the other the stars." Yesterday and today were days shot through with laughter and tears, comedy and tragedy. In the most dramatic scenes the New Haven court room has yet witnessed in the Macri trial.

Mrs. Josephine Whitney, prominent New Haven society woman, leaved down and kissed the little Italian singer at the close of the morning recess.

"Good wishes, my dear child," she whispered. "Remember that I am always behind you."

"The Mrs. Whitney," as she is known in New Haven, is behind Olympia both figuratively and literally. Every morning she sits in the row of seats just behind Olympia and takes notes on the witness standings. Every bit of evidence is taken down by her racing pencil, and she is the first person to greet the young girl when she leaves her attorney's side.

The sudden collapse of the young mother which broke off the proceedings late yesterday afternoon sent two dapper New Haven gentlemen waiting in the witness room on their way rejoicing.

GIRL ACCUSES RECORD FLIGHT TEACHER IN PEABODY BRINGS GIRL TO BOSTON

All airplanes speed records from New York to Boston were broken today when the six mile plane Night Owl, carrying Miss Ruth Charney, New York society girl, with invitations from Ann Morgan and other New York women to Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller and others to attend a radio travel in New York, landed at the East Boston Airport exactly one hour and twenty-eight minutes after taking off. The distance by air is estimated at about 200 miles.

The plane left New York at 11:15 a. m. and made its landing, piloted by Lieutenant George R. Ford, a former Boston newspaper man, at 12:44 p. m.

The invitation to attend the radio travel, to be held in the Plaza Hotel, was sent to Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird and Mrs. Curran Gault. They were sent by Ann Morgan, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Robinson Smith.

The radio travel is to be held under the auspices of the American Women's Association.

Among the celebrities who will perform during the radio travel are: Billie Burke, Mark Denham and Olga Petrova.

Among the reception committee which greeted Lieutenant Ford, and Miss Charney were Postmaster Robert H. Anderson, Postmaster Herbert N. Hanson, Superintendent of Registry Thomas P. Peasey, Assistant Superintendent of Mail J. J. Nolan, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr.

was her in the company of John Bagnano.

"Three weeks before the shooting I saw Olympia and Johnny quarrelling near Worcester street bridge," she said. "I asked Olympia what the trouble was and she said, 'I've been mad.'"

"Johnny told her his father was sick and that he wanted to go home. He pulled one way and she pulled the other, the legs saying, 'You come along with me.' I grabbed her hand. She was mad. I sent my boy down to the Bagnano house and Johnny's wife and mother and sister came and took Olympia home, and Johnny followed."

She said she saw Johnny called for Olympia daily at the shirt factory before he was married.

TELLS OF COURTSHIP.
"They used to walk and lunch together," she said. "The neighbors understood Johnny was courting Olympia at the time." She didn't know whether Johnny gave Olympia flowers and candy, or whether Olympia loved him.

"Johnny told me he wanted to marry Olympia three years ago? A—Don't know whether he wanted to marry or not."

Attorney Kolesky, counsel for the accused, in his cross-examination of Mrs. Flinn traced the first meeting of Olympia to the bridge trying place, where Johnny and the girl quarreled a few weeks before the tragedy.

Q—Did you tell the coroner you thought it was Johnny and his wife fighting that night? A—Yes.

Q—Because Johnny and his wife fought? A—Yes.

Q—Now, as a matter of fact, Olympia was pleading with Johnny to go to her mother's to name the baby, wasn't she? A—No, I heard nothing about the baby.

Q—Did Olympia ask Johnny's father that night? A—No.

Q—Did you see Johnny or the girl with a revolver that night? A—No.

Witness Perillo, testifying to Mrs. Bagnano's effort to support baby Lucy, said Olympia had pleaded before the jury and that before the jury Bagnano support her as well as the baby.

Q—Did you see Johnny or the girl with a revolver that night? A—No.

their ears, they jested out of the court room warbling "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No More."

"She had been a good soldier too long," declared Attorney Kolesky, as he turned from helping Miss Flinn to the witness stand, who came to Olympia's aid after her collapse in court.

"The intense strain of the last weeks has broken all her reserve forces."

New Haven law students waited in double lines outside the entrance to the courtroom today after yesterday's dramatic climax spread like wildfire through Yale University. They waited away the moments by sitting cross-legged on the floor, studying law books and arguing "the law of procedure in a case like this."

Even the Macri family were not admitted to see the Whalley avenue prison last night to see Olympia. They waited every half hour, however, until the prison doctor was able to assure them that Olympia was resting comfortably.

When Olympia stepped out of Warden Bulfinch's limousine this morning she half-crawled back from the throng waiting to view her after yesterday's breakdown. But when Mrs. Baldwin put a motherly arm about her she raised her head and stepped forward bravely.

"Good morning," she smiled. "I promise that I am not going to break down today."

RUTLAND VETERANS GO ON 'WAR PATH'

Judge Ahern of Roxbury to Wed Empire State Girl

WAR VETS DEMAND DOCTOR'S REMOVAL

Convinced that they have won their fight to obtain modification of a general order of the Veterans' Bureau which virtually deprives them of leaves, patients of the Veterans' Hospital at Rutland are now planning to ask for the removal of the medical officer in charge, Major Henry Wolf Brown.

At a mass meeting of the veterans, cheers greeted a telegram from Washington stating that Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, chief of the Veterans' Bureau, to whom the Rutland patients protested, would authorize a liberal interpretation of the new order.

The telegram, which was from R. M. Smythe, National Rehabilitation chairman of the Disabled American Veterans, was read by John F. Leonard, commander of the Rutland Hospital chapter, as follows: "In regard telegram about General Order 218 Hines and Company promise immediate modification of this order. They are sending telegram to officers in charge your hospital today followed by letter, signed 'R. M. Smythe'."

The veterans at the Rutland hospital protested to General Hines by telegram and letter following the posting of the general order to the hospital bulletin board. Of the 200 patients, 152 signed the letter of complaint.

COGNIZANCE TAKEN. The order, which General Hines himself formulated, put an end to the custom of the "routine pass" by which a patient gained leave for six or eight hours, time enough for a pleasure trip to Worcester. These leaves were considered to be a patient's privilege five times in

Amazing Story of a Man's Struggle Against Temptations That Pulled Him Down to Die in a Cell

Back in prison after nearly fourteen years of freedom, Donald Lowrie wonders "Why?" as he shudders as he hears the tap, tap, tap of hammers driving nails into the plain wooden coffin of a convict whose hand he had clasped twenty minutes earlier. While still depressed with the thought—"men are worse than beasts," he is visited by Fremont Older, the man who had urged the writing of his earlier book, "My Life in Prison." Older asked him to tell why he was back in a cell. "Not for yourself," said Older. "You don't count; none of us do, as individuals; but there ought to be a moral in it, especially if you will lay bare your innermost secrets and analyze yourself truly." And so, sitting in the rays of the life-giving Arizona sun, a victim of his own weakness and slowly dying of tuberculosis, Donald Lowrie tells of the road of sin and shame which led him back to a felon's cell. His first step was in meeting a former prisoner and going on a party with him. He meets a girl, Estelle, and is strongly attracted to her. He quarrels with her, but they make up and Lowrie drinks heavily. He then meets "Edith," a San Francisco society girl, who seeks his company. Another convict, Bert Holman, appeals for aid and Lowrie meets his wife, Ruth. The ex-convict goes on a lecture tour, and, returning, pays Estelle a surprise visit. After three days of drunken debauchery Lowrie goes back to writing for his newspaper. He breaks off with Edith.

Mr. Life itself is serious enough without trying to write too seriously about it. Put across the purpose of the story with a laugh instead of a bludgeon." He held a lot more, terse, enigmatically stuff, ending with "Don't stop. Keep on writing. The discouragements for all. You can't

UPSET OF CLAN MEETING TOLD TO COURT

Few and friends of the Irish Free State made up a large, but quiet, gallery in the Roxbury District Court today, at the resumption of the trial of four defendants charged with breaking up a Clan na Gael meeting on April 26, in Hibernian Hall.

Peter Conroy, a veteran of the Clan na Gael, was the first witness today. He said the meeting began in orderly fashion, with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." Then Dan O'Connell, former assistant district attorney, began to speak, and the Republican sympathizers began to hiss.

When O'Connell attempted to restore order the Irish Free State swarmed on the stage, witness testified, and shook their fists at the defendants and announced they would gain the meeting.

Conroy testified four or "some leaders." They are: Thomas Gill of No. 8 Lawrence terrace, Jamaica Plain; William Hayes of No. 21 Godman avenue, Dorchester; Daniel J. Barry of No. 5171 Washington street, Jamaica Plain; and Mrs. Mary Jacobson of No. 542 Tremont street. Hayes, witness said, was Republican active.

After the first wave of rioting had subsided, Judge Colahan of New York began to talk. Conroy testified a moment later, Mrs. Jacobson arose and shook her fist at the judge, and shouted, "You're a liar, Colahan."

"I've been keeping my eye on you and expecting trouble from you," Colahan countered, according to the witness. Then the rioting began again.

Conroy followed one another in rapid succession to testify as to conditions when they arrived, in a hurry call. All agreed that it was a lively meeting.

Judge Timothy J. Ahern, feeling impatient at noon, continued the case until May 14.

Made by the method France uses for her finest toilet soaps—

This new different soap that women demanded for their personal use

Satiny—rich—with the fragrant magic lather that makes you feel so exquisite

It keeps the glamorous beauty of your hair so safe

The delicate bloom of your satiny skin—it's too precious to trust to anything you're not sure of—Lux Toilet Form is made by the French method to guard it!

That prodigal instant lather—how men appreciate it

PLEASE, please make us a new soap—a different soap," women wrote us. "Something as exquisite as the French soaps we pay such absurd prices for."

"Make us a soap for personal use we can adore as we adore them," they asked. "A soap that will caress our delicate skin as imported soaps do."

And—because the makers of Lux are known all over Europe and the world, as the world's largest makers of soap—we were able to.

We made Lux Toilet Form!

And then when women had used it—we asked them what they thought of Lux Toilet Form.

"I adore it—it's so smooth and firm and lasting—just like French soap." Ah yes—for Lux Toilet Form is made by the very method France uses for her finest toilet soaps. This makes Lux Toilet Form "un vrai savon condensé"—firm, delicious, lasting.

"Its lather is so soft and delicious—it leaves my skin so soft and fresh—luxurious feeling." Assuredly—the French method gives to Lux Toilet Form that instant magic lather that leaves your skin refreshed and satin smooth. It gives that intangible, but oh, so real feeling of luxuriousness—the same feeling that has made you willing to pay 50c—75c—$1.00 for imported soaps.

"The fragrance is delicious—wonderful—delicate," women enthuse. "Un vrai savon parfumé." It was a European perfume expert who determined Lux Toilet Form's delicate fragrance.

"It's so wonderful for the bath, too—my husband loves it—the moment it's wet you get such lather." Ah, that was what you wanted, fastidious, charming women—an exquisite soap you could use for everything and not feel wickedly extravagant. A true "savon de toilette" for all the family.

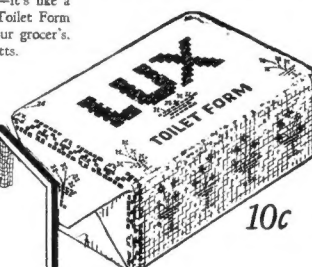

"And that darling lavender and white wrapper—it's like a charming cross-stitch sampler." You will find Lux Toilet Form at your druggist's and your department store and your grocer's. Ten cents. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

ARMED GUARD ON TRAIN THWARTS HOLDUP PLOT

Stoughton, O., May 7 (U.S.A.)—A reported plot to hold up Pennsylvanian train No. 26, New York-St. Louis express, was believed thwarted early today when a large squad of armed deputies and railroad police were stationed on the floor. Authorities were informed by a man who heard the plot discussed in a Steubenville restaurant by four roughly-dressed men. Two of the men he said, were to board the train and bring the express to a stop at Condit's tunnel by signaling with the bell rope.

POSING AS LAW STUDENT, WAITER LANDS IN PRISON

Birmingham, N. Y., May 7.—The cause he posed as a son of a former Mayor of Baltimore and as a law student at a leading university to win pretty Miss Virginia Rose Wilson as his bride, while, in reality, he was a humble waiter and already a henchman, Earl L. Walters of Elston, Pa., today starts for Albany State Prison to serve three years for his crime. And as he leaves the city, in his ears still rings the words of his erstwhile father-in-law, "If I've the worst liar I have ever seen."

BOOTLEGGER AID U. S. WAR ON COUNTERFEITER

Washington, May 7.—The truth of this adage, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," again has been demonstrated to secret service officials who have found that bootleggers and counterfeiters are materially helping the government in checking counterfeiting. A survey of recent counterfeiting cases discloses that more than half of them have been run down through clues resulting in the sale of liquor which was paid for in counterfeit money. Many of the bootleggers are naturally getting wise and are examining money paid them.

MONTE AND MYSTERY GIRL IN HUB CAR SPILL

Motorist in which the "Count" has been rolling merrily up to the Salem courthouse daily, happened in Western avenue at Ravena terrace, Lynn, when Monte inadvertently crashed his maroon-colored chariot into a machine driven by Stanley Field of No. 3 Havana terrace. The crash took a mudguard from the Field car and drove it to a punting board. Monte's counsel, James F. Parley, accompanied him. A crowd, recognizing Monte, gathered around and he had an embarrassing few minutes before escaping.

He had no embarrassing time, however, in Boston street where he and the young lady and the roadster tied up traffic for some time. In company with the pretty and mysterious Katherine, who identified herself today in court as Katherine Beaudine of Rochester, N. H., visitor in Boston and an acquaintance of Monte only since last night, the "Count" left the Copley Plaza and started up Boston street to his roadster.

When nearly to Park square, however, the roadster, weakened from the strain of its long publicity, staggered, sagged and then let itself gracefully down on the pavement, while the two front wheels rolled merrily away.

"MONTE, THE SHERIK!" Monte and pretty Katherine sat bludgeoned in the tired roadster, sitting almost on the pavement. Instantly Monte was recognized and a huge throng gathered with many of the women crying, "Monte, the sherk! Monte, the sherk!" This is Monte's own quotation.

Traffic was tied up for some time by the wreck, but eventually Monte and pretty Katherine stepped blushing from the wreck, a wrecking car arrived and the tired roadster, with its wondering wheels resting on the seat, was towed away for repairs.

And as Katherine came to court today, she gave the court attaches and spectators a thrill with her 20-year-old brunette beauty and a pair of baby blue jazz garters nestling in the curve just below the knee.

As she mentioned Monte's name in the testimony she gave closest attention and she kept an anxious and expectant eye on the door until the correspondent arrived, somewhat disgruntled at the disability of his car and a bit out of breath.

DEATHS OF EIGHT LAID TO BLACKHAND BAND

Pittsburgh, May 7 (A.P.)—Three men are being sought in connection with the explosion at Salsavale yesterday, in which eight members of the same family were killed. Detectives told that three men ran away from the scene a short time before the explosion occurred. Their theory is that the explosion was a "black hand" plot against Thomas Pennington, a fruit dealer whose store was in one of the four buildings wrecked. They said that about three weeks ago, Mrs. Charles Green, daughter of Pennington, had shown another woman a "black hand" letter addressed to her father.

Hot Dog! Street Is to Keep Name of Frankfort

Pittsburgh, May 7.—Frankfort street will still remain Frankfort street. The City Council decided that even though citizens in other parts of the city refer to the street as "Hot Dog street," it shall continue to be Frankfort street. The residents of the thoroughfare petitioned to change the name to Turner street. A special committee of the City Council advised the change, but the Council itself voted the idea down.

OIL MAGNATE'S SON FINED AFTER FRACAS

New York, May 7.—John C. Cullen, 19-year-old son of J. B. Cullen, wealthy oil man of Bradford, N. Y., and his seventeen-year-old companion, Thomas MacClary, paid $10 fine in Yorkville Court today on disorderly conduct charges resulting from a fracas in the Hotel Biltmore, Saturday night. The youths apologized.

Young Cullen and MacClary were arrested after a hotel detective had interrupted a party in their room in the course of which furniture was broken and one party smashed. The hotel did not press for severe punishment and said payment had been made.

BLOODHOUNDS COREY HILL IN TRACK MINE FIGHT AGAINST DYNAMITERS

Strikers Blamed for the Blast Which Wrecked Coal Mine Power Line

Fairmont, W. Va., May 7.—State police today continued their search for persons who dynamited the transformers of the Consolidated Coal Company serving the company's Highland mine. A high tension power line that serves other mining properties is believed by police to have been the object of the dynamiters, but it was not damaged.

The troopers were aided in their search by bloodhounds and county officers.

Mine operators said several properties would have been forced to close had the power line been damaged.

Fairmont, ten miles distant, felt the force of the blast, and the explosion was heard for miles around.

Reports on the general situation in this district, where a strike was called April 1, showed little change.

MAN EXONERATED FOR SHOOTING HIGHWAYMAN
Danielson Conn., May 7.—Croner Arthur G. Hill made public his finding in his inquest into the death of Joseph Johnson of Providence, R. I., who was shot and killed during an alleged holdup on the Providence turnpike April 27, by B. E. Terwilliger of South Kingsley. The coroner finds that Mr. Terwilliger "shot Johnson while Johnson was making a violent and murderous attack upon him with an iron jack and a large iron wrench and was beating Terwilliger on the body and threatening to kill him."

I Was The Woman In That Tropical Triangle . . .

Scene 1

"IF you ever so much as speak to Anderson Holt again, I will kill you or him—or both."

"David spoke with grim finality in his tones. I shivered. I had always been afraid of him."

"And now, alone with him in this wilderness, he was threatening me with death! I had not dreamed he knew there was an Anderson Holt in the world—"

And So We Set the Stage for

The JUDGMENT of the JUNGLE .

"COME with me," David said later. Was he going to confront me with some evidence of Andy's visits? I was almost fainting as I followed him.

"Moses, show Mrs. Dunbar what you have there." The old negro, bending over, pulled something out of a box and flung it on the floor. I gave a cry. I was staring at a dead rattlesnake—six feet long and as big around as a man's arm.

"Moses killed it in the jungle today. The bite of one of those big fellows is almost certain death."

Scene 2

"In spite of this threat—I determined to keep my engagement with Andy, who was waiting for me with his car. David discovered my flight and pursued. I had no breath to scream with as David gained upon me, as his hands clutched my waist and shoulder, as he jerked me back.

And here, in the warm, living darkness, I was biting, scuffling, panting—fighting with David for my life.

"The unequal struggle could not last. I felt my body grow limp in David's strong arms. For a long moment he held me motionless against his hard chest. Then suddenly I felt a queer jar run through David's body; his grip relaxed.

"My lips parted in a soundless scream. Evil, unblinking eyes in a motionless V-indented head were staring up at me. Behind the lowered head rose the thick, mottled coils of a great rattlesnake, its many-buttoned tail upraised again in that loud locust-like whirr. I stared back fascinated—"

This story of tropical temptation and of the amazing judgment of the jungle on this intense human triangle is one of over a score of stirring, throbbing true experiences in June SmartSet. Buy the magazine now at the nearest news-stand.

LEARN TO SWIM CAMPAIGN IS COMMENCED

Holm, Athletic Union Committeeman, Calls on Boys to Take Lessons

"The Boston Evening American and the Boys' Club of Boston should be highly commended for promoting the 'Learn to Swim' campaign," Herbert D. Holm, New England member of the National A. A. U. swimming committee, writes in a letter received today by this newspaper.

"New England, with its great coast line and its many rivers and lakes, should have been the first to develop the youth along this healthful and necessary line of physical training; yet we are behind other sections of the country.

"I hope this campaign will show to the many municipalities the necessity of having public swimming pools, where all may be taught to swim and where citizens may enjoy this wonderful recreation and also lessen the number of drownings each year.

"To the boys I would say get together, make up your parties of non-swimmers and go to the Boys' Club of Boston on Green Street, Boston, at 10 a. m. and $30 to $20 p. m. Every boy between the ages of eight and twenty-one years is eligible. Clip the stand on the waist or back this accompanying coupon and fill it out.

LEVERHULME, SOAP KING, IS DEAD

Name Known All Over English Speaking World; Plant in Cambridge

London, May 7. (A.P.)—Viscount Leverhulme, the "soap king," died early today of pneumonia. He was seventy-four years of age, and one of England's greatest industrial leaders.

Beginning in a small way in a soap factory he branched out for himself, and became not only a multimillionaire but a manufacturer who divided his profits with his employees.

His title of Viscount Leverhulme, conferred on him in 1912, is a combination of his own and his wife's.

Factories Spread Over Face of Earth

Viscount Leverhulme was founder and chairman of the board of managers of Lever Bros. Ltd., of England, and Lever Bros. Company of Cambridge, one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the world.

William Joseph Lever was born at Bolton, Lancashire, England, in 1851. His first job when he was 16 years old consisted of cutting and wrapping soap.

Four years later he had won promotion to a clerical job and, when he married, two years later, everyone who knew him thought that he had settled down for life.

But he soon had a little factory of his own. His romantic rise dates from that moment. It was a fight, and a hard one, to make fortune smile, but gradually she did, and before many years had passed his wealth had grown to such proportions that it actually disturbed him.

Part of it was spent in creating his model towns and model town of Port Sunlight.

He favored a six-hour working day for his employees, but never worked less than sixteen hours a day himself.

His system of co-partnership was started in 1901 and never has been changed.

"Work six hours a day at your maximum power of production," he would say to his employees, "study and improve yourselves two hours a day, and I can afford to pay you for eight hours of work."

TECH COXSAIN CLOSE TO DEATH IN CHARLES

Renet Merrick, coxswain of the M. T. Junior class eight, was the worse today from his dip in the Charles River Basin when he was dragged from the water by Harry Gitterman, Tech freshman, who leaped into the water in full military uniform and effected the rescue.

Merrick was one of twenty-seven Harvard and Tech men who were thrown into the water when three shells capsized near the Harvard bridge. The other survivors either made their way safely to shore or clung to the capsized craft until they were picked up by the coaching launches.

ask any good scout

—about the new Sunshine Soda Cracker

Note the shape. Three good reasons for the notched sides (patented):
1. Splits in two for sandwiches.
2. Less crumbling.
3. In baking, the notches form many ventholes in the sheet of crackers. Result—more thorough baking and better flavor.

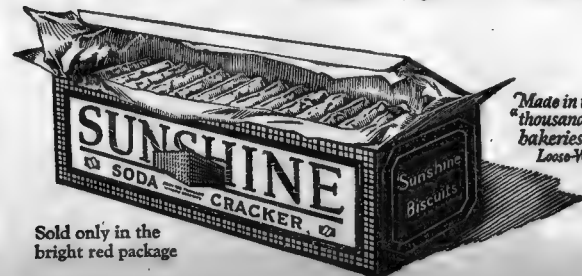

THEY know the best rations for hungry, hollow-legged scouts all hiked out.

They know how the new Sunshine Soda Cracker plugs the hungry spot—although they may not know about the high energy value (100 calories in every four crackers) that does the trick.

They know that there's a new and better taste that goes with each mouthful—although they may not realize the cunning that lies way behind the package in the Thousand Window Bakeries where each plump biscuit is baked. But for those of you who are interested in the reason for this new, appealing taste, it is:

The Full Grain Process

—a new art in baking crackers just as prized by us as the secrets of those old-time cooks who became famous far beyond their kitchens for that elusive, fugitive taste which no other cooks attain.

COOLIDGE FOR BAN ON POISON GAS IN WAR

American Delegate Asks Prohibition of Shipments for Fighting

Geneva, May 7 (A.P.)—Condemnation of the use of poison gas and prohibition of its exportation for war purposes is proposed in a new article of the draft convention offered by Representative Theodore E. Bur ton, of Ohio, heading the American delegation at today's session of the International Conference for Control of the Traffic in Arms.

Mr. Burton said he expressed the desire of the American Government and people that some such provision regarding poison gas be adopted. He said the subject had been brought to the attention of President Coolidge and that the President would approve a prohibition of the exportation of poison gas for war purposes.

He recalled that nine of the powers that signed the Washington Treaty agreed to try to induce other powers to agree to measures forbidding the use of asphyxiating gases in war, but he admitted that there are obstacles to prohibiting the export of such gases.

Gould Heiress Tells the Intimate Details of Life of Rich

By Edith Gould Wainwright
Daughter of George J. Gould and Granddaughter of Jay Gould.

ALTHOUGH we live in the country, it must not be supposed that we lose track of our friends in town. On the contrary, when we lived in the city we got bored going out night after night. Now we look forward to our evenings in the city.

One of the most popular young couples in New York are the Samuel J. Wagstaffs. They bring life and amusement to every party. Mrs. Wagstaff is one of the few women who successfully combine motherhood with careers. She draws beautifully for the fashion magazines.
